Food Citizenship

Food System Advocates in an Era of Distrust

Ray A. Goldberg, Harvard University

- The first book to tell the story of the global food system through the words and perspectives of those creating it
- Based on conversations with a select group of leaders brought together at the author's annual conference on the world food system
- Highlights the perspectives of leaders in academia, nonprofits, public health, and the private and public sectors

The global food system is the largest segment of the world's economy. As Ray Goldberg suggests, it is also the largest health system on the planet. And it is changing fast. Through Goldberg's interviews with changemakers in government, private industry, academia, and nonprofits, this book takes a panoramic and in-depth look at how these leaders are driving a revolution.

The Architecture of Collapse

The Global System in the 21st Century

Mauro F. Guillén,
University of Pennsylvania

Using a variety of economic, financial, and political indicators, this book demonstrates that the global system has become an ‘architecture of collapse’. The global financial crisis of 2008, the bilateral relationship between the U.S. and China, and the European sovereign debt crisis illustrate the causes and the consequences of global instability.

Material Markets

How Economic Agents are Constructed

Donald MacKenzie,
University of Edinburgh

Financial markets, processes, and instruments are often difficult to fathom; the credit crisis highlights both their importance and their fragility. In this book, Donald MacKenzie, one of the most perceptive analysts of the financial world, puts forward a material sociology of markets, rooted in the actors and agents that shape modern finance.

Prosperity

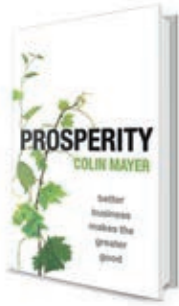

*Better Business
Makes the Greater
Good*

Colin Mayer,
University of Oxford

- A radical reformulation of our notions of business, its roles and responsibilities, and the way it operates
- Argues that the prevailing beliefs about business cause inequality, low growth, poor innovation, and environmental degradation
- Sets out a renewed vision of how the corporation can create both economic and social wellbeing, and how regulatory and taxation can make this a reality

Does business just exist to maximise shareholder profit? The belief it does has had disastrous consequences for our economies, environment, politics, and societies, argues Colin Mayer. In an urgent call for reform, he sets out an agenda to remake the corporation into a powerful force for promoting economic and social wellbeing in its fullest sense.

Productivity and the Bonus Culture

Andrew Smithers

- Challenges the prevailing myth that the financial crisis is the primary cause of slow growth over the past decade
- Presents evidence to suggest that slow growth is wholly as a result in adverse changes in demography and productivity
- Reveals startling information to show that declining productivity in the UK and US is inextricably linked to low investment induced by the bonus culture

Growth in the US and UK is declining due to poor productivity. This book sets out a revised model which demonstrates that weakness in productivity is the result of the bonus culture, and suggests ways to change this flawed system so that investment is encouraged and growth returns.

Mathematical Finance

A Very Short Introduction

Mark H. A. Davis,

Imperial College London

Now a vital part of modern economies, the rapid growth of the finance industry in recent decades is largely due to the development of mathematical methods such as the theory of arbitrage. Asset valuation, credit trading, and fund management, now depend on these mathematical tools. Mark Davis explains the theories and their applications.

Development

A Very Short Introduction

Ian Goldin,

University of Oxford

How do nations escape poverty and achieve economic and social progress? Ian Goldin, a former vice-president of the World Bank, explains what development means in its broadest sense - encompassing education, health, and gender equality as well as economic growth. He discusses the shift from state-led strategies, to ones driven by market forces.

The Goldilocks Challenge

Right-Fit Evidence for the Social Sector

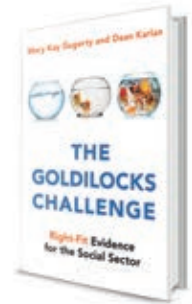

Mary Kay Gugerty, University of Washington, and Dean Karlan, Northwestern University

- Pragmatic guide to creating and implementing data strategies to support learning and evaluation for social sector organizations
- Includes real-world examples of organizations struggling with balancing demands for data with realities of using those data
- Critical importance for non-profit organizations, social enterprises, and governments, engaged in evidence-based programming and policymaking

The recent push for impact measurement has been positive, but it has also led to wasted resources and often misleading data about what works. In The Goldilocks Challenge, Mary Kay Gugerty and Dean Karlan put forth four key principles to guide organizations of all sizes to create strong, "right-fit" data collection systems.

Why and When Top Down Management of Foreign Aid Doesn't Work

Dan Honig, Johns Hopkins University

- Argues that tight controls and narrow focus on reaching pre-set targets can prevent frontline workers from using their skills and creativity to solve problems on the ground, undermining the performance of foreign aid projects
- Honig draws on a novel database of over 14,000 discrete development projects across nine agencies and eight qualitative studies in making his argument
- Pressure to demonstrate results can undermine performance, particularly when environments are unpredictable and task performance hard to reliably and accurately measure

High-quality implementation of foreign aid interventions sometimes requires employee use of contextual information that will be precluded by tight management control. Drawing from over 130 interviews and statistical analysis of a novel database of over 14,000 discrete development projects, Honig finds that top-down controls sometimes undermine development project success.

How Lives Change

Palanpur, India, and Development Economics

Himanshu, Jawaharlal Nehru University, Peter Lanjouw, VU University, and Nicholas Stern, London School of Economics

- Uses the unique “laboratory” of Palanpur to capture lives and livelihoods over seven decades
- A fascinating insight into the context and drivers of change, providing a rare opportunity to understand mobility, inequality, society, and entrepreneurship, and to assess the performance of development economics
- Unprecedented access to a longitudinal village study with complete coverage of a population

Development economics is about understanding how and why lives change. This book assesses the performance and potential of development in a single village in a crucially important country. By studying Palanpur in India over seven decades it shows how the changes in one village can provide insight into changes in India since independence.

Taken For A Ride

Grounding Neoliberalism, Precarious Labour, and Public Transport in an African Metropolis

Matteo Rizzo,
University of London

The growth of cities, and informal economies within them, are two central manifestations of globalization in the developing world. This book contributes to our understanding of both, through a study of public transport in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania's largest city, from 1970 to 2015.

Sense and Solidarity

Jholawala Economics for Everyone

Jean Drèze,
Ranchi University

- A wide-ranging collection of articles on social development in India authored by prominent economist and expert Jean Drèze
- Includes a detailed introduction on the basic principles of 'research for action'
- Provides a retrospective on social policy debates in India during the last 15 years

This collection of Jean Drèze's essays offer a unique insight on issues of hunger, poverty, inequality, corruption, conflict, and the evolution of social policy in India over the last twenty years. Sense and Solidarity enlarges the boundaries of social development towards a broad concern with the sort of society we want to create.

Immiserizing Growth

When Growth Fails the Poor

Paul Shaffer, Trent University
Edited by Ravi Kanbur, Cornell University, and Richard Sandbrook, University of Toronto

Immiserizing growth occurs when economic growth fails to benefit, or even harms, the poor. This first book-length examination of this phenomenon combines discussion of the mechanisms of immiserizing growth with empirical data on trends in growth, poverty, and related welfare indicators.

The Globotics Upheaval

Globalization, Robotics, and the Future of Work

Richard Baldwin,
Graduate Institute, Geneva

In The Globotics Upheaval, Richard Baldwin explains how digital technology will bring globalization and robotics, or "globotics," to previously unaffected professional and service sectors. Baldwin analyzes how these rapid changes are likely to affect government policies and envisions the future of employment, predicting an increase in face-to-face interaction that will strengthen bonds in local communities.

Governing the Ungovernable

Institutional Reforms for Democratic Governance

Ishrat Husain

This book attempts to examine the reasons behind Pakistan's slowdown, the volatile and inequitable growth of the last twenty-five years, and through a process of theoretical and empirical evidence argues that the most powerful explanatory hypothesis lies in the decay of institutions of governance. It also suggests a selective and incremental approach of restructuring some key public institutions that pertain to accountability, transparency, security, economic growth, and equity.

Quarter Century of Liberalization in India

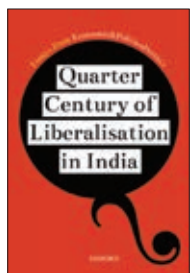

Looking Back and Looking Ahead

Essays from EPW

This book examines the 1991 economic reforms from different ideological perspectives and carries forward the debates on the pros and cons of the market-friendly set of policies that shifted the centre of India's political economy more rightward than ever before. Authors from diverse backgrounds track the origins and continuation of liberal policies, dissecting the role of the state over the last 25 years in addressing issues like poverty, nutrition, and income inequality.

Voices of Jordan

Rana Sweis

This book tells the story of Jordan through the lives of ordinary people, including a political cartoonist, a Syrian refugee, a Jihadist and a female parliamentarian. The raw voices and everyday struggles of these people shine a fresh light on the politics, religion, and society of a culture coming to terms with the harsh reality of modernization and urbanization at a time of regional upheaval.

Taming Capitalism before its Triumph

Public Service, Distrust, and 'Projecting' in Early Modern England

Koji Yamamoto,
University of Tokyo

Early modern England had a distinctive preoccupation with the social responsibilities of private businesses. Koji Yamamoto explores for the first time how promises of public service in the economic sphere came to be abused, and how statesmen, playwrights, petitioners, and merchants responded to such perversions of promised public service.

The Wealth of a Nation

A History of Trade Politics in America

C. Donald Johnson, Jr.,
University of Georgia Law School

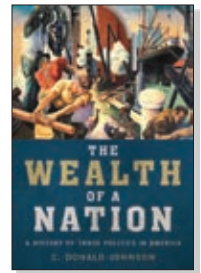

The Wealth of a Nation is an authoritative history of trade and the politics surrounding it from the nation's founding to the present. Authored by former U.S. congressman and U.S. Trade Representative C. Donald Johnson, it offers a powerful defense of the post-World War Two liberal economic order that America created, and explains why abandoning it will harm all Americans, including workers.

The National Debt

A Short History

Martin Slater

Slater vividly recounts the story of the UK national debt and how attempts to manage it explain many key turning-points in British history. In today's "austerity era," the national debt is newsworthy once again. But this phenomenon, while central to today's politics, can be a highly technical subject. Few people fully understand its implications. This book is written for the lay reader who is not well versed in economics.

Postgrowth Imaginaries

New Ecologies and Counterhegemonic Culture in Post-2008 Spain

Luis I. Prádanos

Postgrowth Imaginaries brings together environmental cultural studies and postgrowth economics to examine radical cultural shifts sparked by the global financial crisis. The globalization of an economic culture addicted to constant growth destroys the ecological planetary systems while failing to fulfil its social promises. A transition toward what Prádanos calls 'postgrowth imaginaries' - the counterhegemonic cultural sensibilities that are challenging the growth paradigm - is well underway in the Iberian Peninsula today.

OXFORD STUDIES ON THE ROMAN ECONOMY

Measuring Utility

From the Marginal Revolution to Behavioral Economics

Ivan Moscati,

University of Insubria;
Bocconi University

- Provides a general history of utility measurement, a core concept in economics
- Investigates some key methodological issues associated with utility measurement, and explores other foundational debates in economic theory related to the measurability of utility
- Connects debates within economics to parallel developments in other social sciences, including psychology, as well as philosophy of science

Since the marginal revolution of the 1870s, the economic theory of decision-making has been based on the notion of utility. Utility, however, is not measurable. This book reconstructs economists' struggles with issues related to utility measurement from the 1870s to the beginning of behavioral economics in the mid-1980s.

Capitalism

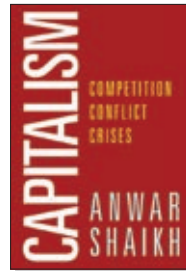

Competition, Conflict, Crises

Anwar Shaikh, New School
for Social Research

In Capitalism, Anwar Shaikh demonstrates that most of the central propositions of economic analysis can be derived without any reference to hyperrationality, optimization, perfect competition, perfect information, representative agents or so-called rational expectations. These include the laws of demand and supply, the determination of wage and profit rates, technological change, relative prices, interest rates, bond and equity prices, exchange rates, terms and balance of trade, growth, unemployment, inflation, and long booms culminating in recurrent general crises.

OXFORD HANDBOOKS

The Oxford Handbook of Sovereign Wealth Funds

Edited by Douglas J. Cumming, York University, Geoffrey Wood, University of Essex, Igor Filatotchev, City University London, and Juliane Reinecke, University of Warwick

Sovereign Wealth Funds have become increasingly powerful and influential investors. Their increasing role, and unusual character as both political and market actors, raise a number of issues with regard to finance, politics, regulation, and international business. This handbook draws together the growing but fragmented research on SWFs.

The Oxford Handbook of Banking and Financial History

Edited by Youssef Cassis, European University Institute, Richard S. Grossman, Wesleyan University, and Catherine R. Schenk, University of Glasgow

The financial crisis of 2008 aroused widespread interest in banking and financial history. Contributions to this volume analyse banking and financial history in a long-term comparative perspective. Lessons drawn from these analyses may well help future generations of policy makers avoid a repeat of the financial turbulence that erupted in 2008.

The Economics, Regulation, and Systemic Risk of Insurance Markets

Edited by Felix Hufeld, German Federal Financial Supervisory Authority (BaFin), Ralph S. J. Koijen, NYU Stern School of Business, and Christian Thimann, AXA Group

Despite the importance of insurance in enabling individual and collective social, economic, and financial activities, discussions about the macroeconomic role and risks of insurance markets are surprisingly limited. The book brings together academics, regulators, and industry experts to provide a multifaceted array of research and perspectives on insurance, its role and functioning, and the potential systemic risk it could create.

Cash and Dash

How ATMs and Computers Changed Banking

Bernardo Bätz-Lazo, Bangor University

- Covers the digitalisation process of banking from the 1960s to the present day
- Uses cross-country comparisons to study why, in spite of globalization, retail payment systems map to national borders

This book uses the invention and development of the automated teller machine (ATM) to explain the birth and evolution of digital banking, from the 1960s to present day. The discussion tackles head on the drivers of long-term innovation in retail banking.

Wall Street

A History

FOURTH EDITION

Charles R. Geisst, Manhattan College

This updated edition covers the slow recovery following the lowest points of the Great Recession and the tensions of regulation. Geisst illustrates the cyclical nature of Wall Street as recent crises are strikingly reminiscent of past economic failings. As Wall Street and America have changed irrevocably after the crisis, Charles R. Geisst offers the definitive chronicle of the relationship between the two, and the challenges and successes it has fostered that have shaped our history.

Shadow Networks

Financial Disorder and the System that Caused Crisis

Francisco Louçã,
ISEG, Lisbon University,
and Michael Ash,
University of Massachusetts Amherst

- Challenges prevailing narratives of the financial crisis to argue that economic collapse is ingrained in the shadow networks of finance
- Examines an overwhelming variety of branches of the powerful elite to examine how economic actors have mobilized institutions and networks to their advantage

Many accounts of the financial crisis focus on renegade activity in marginal financial sectors. This book argues that far from this prevailing view the shadow finance that initiated the crisis is tightly networked with bank-based finance. It traces these networks to explain how the now decade-long crisis took shape.

Headquarters Economy

Managers, Mobility, and Migration

J. Myles Shaver,
University of Minnesota

- Offers a new explanation of regional economic vitality
- Empirically grounded investigation, using examples and case studies from well known organizations
- Highlights the role of managers in 'headquarters economies', extending the focus of current discussion beyond technologies or creatives

By investigating the headquarters economy of Minneapolis-St. Paul, and exploring the management strategies of headquarters, this book surveys the characteristics of influential dynamic economies, demonstrating how factors such as managers, mobility, and migration create a virtuous cycle that strengthens companies and draws in additional talent.

Uncertain Futures

Imaginaris, Narratives, and Calculation in the Economy

Edited by Jens Beckett,

Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies,

and Richard Bronk,

London School of

Economics and Political Science

- Suggests alternative microfoundations for economics in conditions of uncertainty to replace the rational expectations hypothesis
- Focuses on use of narratives in empirical economic settings

Uncertain Futures considers how economists visualize the future and decide how to act in conditions of uncertainty. Because dynamic capitalist economies are characterized by innovation and novelty they exhibit an indeterminacy that cannot be reduced. This book questions how expectations can be formed and decisions made in spite of uncertainty.

Global Algorithmic Capital Markets

High Frequency Trading, Dark Pools, and Regulatory Challenges

Edited by
Walter Mattli,
University of Oxford

- An expert-led and interdisciplinary discussion of a global phenomenon
- Examines overlooked market governance issues to inform public policy debate
- Includes contributions from academics, industry experts, and public regulatory agencies

This book illustrates the dramatic recent transformations in capital markets worldwide. Market making by humans in centralized markets has been replaced by super computers and algorithms in often highly fragmented markets. This book discusses how this impacts public policy objectives and how market governance could be strengthened.

Foundational Economy

The Infrastructure of Everyday Life

The Foundational Economy Collective

The foundational economy means those universally necessary goods and services that form the basis of a civilised life: everything from clean piped water to decent health care. All these services were built up by state action to enable collective finance and collective consumption. In the last generation privatization and outsourcing have degraded this provision. The book documents all this, and shows how it can be renewed.

Why Superman Doesn't Take Over The World

What Superheroes Can Tell Us About Economics

J. Brian O'Roark, Robert Morris University

- A fun and fresh and entertaining introduction to economics
- All the basic concepts are introduced through a tongue-in-cheek look at the dilemmas superheroes face

Why do some superheroes have day jobs? Why do villains keep trying even though they almost never win? Why don't heroes simply take over the world? With brilliant deadpan humour, comic aficionado professor J. Brian O'Roark uses the tools of economics to explain superheroes, and the world of superheroes to explain economics.

Advancing Human Development

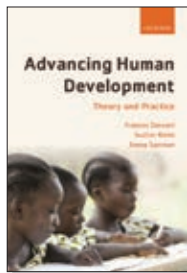

Theory and Practice

Frances Stewart, University of Oxford, Gustav Ranis, and Emma Samman, Overseas Development Institute

Human Development is a prime goal of many development strategies. This book explains what Human Development is, and how it emerged from previous development methods. By exploring developments over the last forty years, it explains what makes for success and failure, and how progress has been made across the globe.

NEW EDITION

Neighborhoods and Health

SECOND EDITION

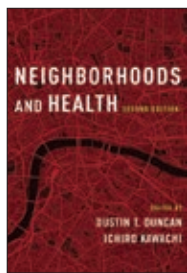

Edited by Dustin T. Duncan, New York University, and Ichiro Kawachi, Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

Foreword by Ana V. Diez Roux

In 2003, Neighborhoods and Health codified the idea that a neighborhood's social and physical makeup can influence the health of people who live in it. More than a decade later, with the relationship between place and health firmly entrenched at the center of how we understand public health (and as its own scientific discipline, spatial epidemiology), this second edition of the landmark text offers another giant leap forward for the field.

Global Health Justice and Governance

Dr. Prah Ruger, University of Pennsylvania

- Presents a visionary new theory of global health justice and governance
- Reveals gaps in existing attempts to address health issues through in-depth analysis of current global justice and governance theories
- Describes theoretical concepts in a practical manner, tying theory to ground-level examples

In a world beset by extreme and unconscionable health disparities humankind desperately needs a new vision to ensure central health capabilities for all. This book lays out the profound health challenges facing the world today and offers a new theory of justice and governance as a way to resolve these seemingly intractable problems.

The Future of Indian Universities

Comparative and International Perspectives

Edited by C. Raj Kumar, O.P. Jindal Global University

This volume emphasizes the need for fundamental reforms into the existing institutional structure of higher education and their governance so as to infuse much needed dynamism and renewed sense of purpose in the higher education sector in India. The contributors to the volume argue that universities ought to be dynamic institutions where new ideas are exchanged, mistakes made, and lessons learnt.

The Gendered Proletariat

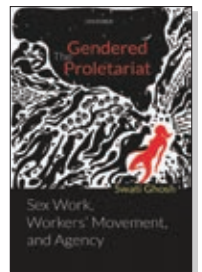

Sex Work, Workers' Movement, and Agency

Swati Ghosh,
Rabindra Bharati University

This book presents a political-economic analysis of sex work, followed by a probe into sex workers' movement and agency that the movement is claimed to have obtained for sex workers in the context of Sonagachi in Kolkata, West Bengal. The book initiates a rethinking on sex work beyond the feminist debate on morality and rights, and reveals the faultlines that makes incorporation of the prostitute into the worker-citizen complex always incomplete.

Welfare and the Great Recession

A Comparative Study

Edited by Stefán Ólafsson, The University of Iceland, Mary Daly, University of Oxford, Olli Kangas, University of Turku, and Joakim Palme, University of Uppsala

This book surveys and analyses welfare consequences in the period following the financial crisis in Europe. It investigates how the burdens of the recession were shared between countries, between different socio-economic groups across Europe, and within individual countries, and offers new evidence that demonstrates the importance of the welfare state and government policies in sheltering populations from serious economic contraction.

Adam Smith

A Very Short Introduction

Christopher J. Berry,
University of Glasgow

Today Adam Smith, author of the Wealth of Nations, is associated with the promotion of self-interest and a defence of greed. Yet if Smith is actually read this is more a caricature than a faithful portrait. Berry offers a balanced and nuanced view of this seminal thinker, set against contemporary European history, politics, and philosophy.

EuroTragedy

A Drama in Nine Acts

Ashoka Mody, Princeton University; Former Deputy Director, International Monetary Fund

- Points to the contradictions in the European pursuit of unity as the goals of peace, prosperity, and democratic ideals inevitably came into conflict
- Sweeping narrative that focuses on key personalities, their ambitions, and their limitations
- Offers profound insights into the roots of Europe's disorder, including the discontent of the disadvantaged with the political systems and elites

EuroTragedy is an incisive exploration of the tragedy of how the European push for integration was based on illusions and delusions pursued in the face of warnings that the pursuit of unity was based on weak foundations.

Brother, Can You Spare a Billion?

The United States, the IMF, and the International Lender of Last Resort

Daniel McDowell,

Syracuse University

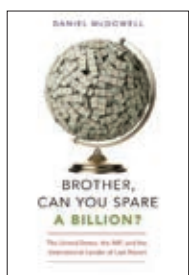

Brother, Can You Spare a Billion? explores how and why the U.S. has regularly acted, often alongside the IMF, as an international lender of last resort by selectively bailing out foreign economies in crisis. Daniel McDowell highlights the unique role that the U.S. has played in stabilizing the world economy from the 1960s through 2008.

Europe's Growth Champion

Insights from the Economic Rise of Poland

Marcin Piatkowski,

Harvard University's Center for European Studies; The World Bank; Kozminski University

- A pioneering case study of Poland's economic success
- Uses a specific country study in order to inform broader arguments on development and growth
- Provides a new take on the role of institutions, culture, ideas, and leaders in development

Poland is one of the biggest yet rarely heard of economic success stories. Over the last twenty-five years it has unexpectedly become Europe's growth champion. This book is about lessons learned from Poland's remarkable experience, the conditions that keep countries poor, and the challenges countries face to grow.

Raise the Debt

How Developing Countries Choose Their Creditors

Jonas B. Bunte, University of Texas-Dallas

This book systematically explains how governments choose among competing loan offers. As the strings attached to loans vary across creditors, domestic interest groups prefer one type of creditor to the other. However, interest groups disagree about which creditor is preferable. Governments cater to whichever domestic interest group coalition is dominant by borrowing from the coalition's preferred creditor. The book offers evidence from Ecuador, Peru, and Colombia as well as an extensive statistical analysis. The results show that borrowing portfolios around the world reflect the relative strength of societal interest groups.

Multiculturalism and Advertising

Indian and European Enterprises under Globalization

Anuradha Bhattacharjee, Consultant

Advertising is not only a useful index to measure globalization, but also a catalyst to increasing interconnections between economies and cultures. This book presents a comparative analysis of intercultural advertising through an empirical study of advertisements in two geographically diverse commercial regions-Europe and India. Showing that there is a significant increase in multicultural images, symbols, and texts in advertisements, this book argues that there is a growing congruence of values among different cultures.

China and the Islamic World

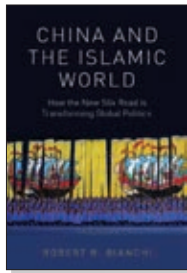

How the New Silk Road is Transforming Global Politics

Robert R. Bianchi, Shanghai International Studies University

China is building a New Silk Road that runs through the heartland of the Muslim world, promising it will create integrated economies and stronger ties across Eurasia and Africa. Robert R. Bianchi argues that while China has the financial and technical resources to accomplish its infrastructure goals, it is woefully unprepared to deal with the social and political demands of its partner countries' citizens.

Youth Labor in Transition

Inequalities, Mobility, and Policies in Europe

Edited by Jacqueline O'Reilly, University of Sussex Business School, Janine Leschke, Copenhagen Business School, Renate Ortlieb, University of Graz, Martin Seeleib-Kaiser, Eberhard Karls Universität Tübingen, and Paola Villa, University of Trento

Exacerbated by the Great Recession, youth transitions to employment and adulthood have become increasingly protracted, precarious, and differentiated by gender, ethnicity, and socioeconomic status. Examining employment transitions affected by family and migration, Youth Labor in Transition argues for an integrated analysis of the sphere of economic production and social reproduction if policy intervention is to be effective.

Spending Time

The Most Valuable Resource

Daniel S. Hamermesh, University of Texas at Austin

- Comprehensive description of how Americans and people in other rich countries spend time
- Shows how different America is from other countries
- Clear discussion of how the rich behave differently from the rest of us

Time is the ultimate scarce resource and thus quintessentially a topic for economics, the study of scarcity. Starting with the observation that time is increasingly valuable given competing demands as we have more things we can buy and do, Spending Time provides engaging insights into how people use their time and what determines their decisions about spending their time.

Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprise Insolvency

A Modular Approach

Riz Mokal, South Square Chambers; University College London, Ronald Davis, University of British Columbia, Alberto Mazzoni, Catholic University of Milan; President of UNIDROIT, Irit Mevorach, University of Nottingham, Madam Justice Barbara Romaine, Queen's Bench, Canada, Janis Sarra, University of British Columbia, Ignacio Tirado, Universidad Autonoma De Madrid, and Stephan Madaus, Martin-Luther-University Halle-Wittenberg, Germany

This book reconsiders the treatment of distressed Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs). Recognising that insolvency systems traditionally suit larger enterprises, and that they do not always apply neatly to smaller entities, the book proposes a 'modular' approach designed to facilitate the treatment of smaller enterprises in distress.

Law and the Political Economy of Hunger

Anna Chadwick, University of Glasgow

After the global food crisis of 2007-2011, many Non-Government Organizations blamed speculators trading in commodity derivatives, viewing speculator driven high price volatility in grain markets as culpable for the disaster. Chadwick disagrees, arguing that current legal regimes bear far more responsibility for the tragedy of world hunger.

Creating Economy

Enterprise, Intellectual Property, and the Valuation of Goods

Barbara Townley, and Philip Roscoe, both at University of St Andrews, and Nicola Searle, University of London

Creativity has been valorised as a form of capital in its own right, but what is economic about creativity? This book offers a fresh approach to this topic within the creative industries. Through a focus on intellectual property, it shows how IP shapes creative products and configures the economic agency of creative producers.

Re-Imagining Offshore Finance

Market-Dominant Small Jurisdictions in a Globalizing Financial World

Christopher M. Bruner,
University of Georgia

In this book, Bruner canvasses extant theoretical frameworks used to describe and evaluate the roles of small jurisdictions in cross-border finance. He proposes a new conceptual framework that better captures the characteristics, competitive strategies, and market roles of those achieving global dominance in the marketplace - the "market-dominant small jurisdiction" (MDSJ).

Sovereign Debt and Human Rights

Ilias Bantekas, Brunel University; Northwestern University, and Cephas Lumina, University of Fort Hare

Sovereign debt is necessary for states to function, yet its impact on human rights is underexplored. Bantekas and Lumina gather experts to conclude that imposing structural adjustment programmes exacerbates debt, injures the entrenched rights of peoples and their state's economic sovereignty, and worsens the borrower's economic situation.

Contradictions of Democracy

Vigilantism and Rights in Post-Apartheid South Africa

Nicholas Rush Smith, City University of New York City College

Despite being one of the world's most vibrant democracies, vigilantism is regularly practiced in South Africa. Based on twenty months of field work, Contradictions of Democracy shows why, explores what South Africa reveals about vigilantism in other democracies, and uses vigilantism to explore the contradictions of democracy more generally.

Megaregulation Contested

The Global Economic Order after TPP

Edited by Benedict Kingsbury, NYU Law, David M. Malone, United Nations University, Richard B. Stewart, NYU Law, and Atsushi Sunami, National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies

In this collection, leading scholars from around the world analyse the concept of 'megaregulation' as a new intergovernmental economic ordering and form of governance. With the (temporary?) failure of TPP, the collection also looks at the controversies surrounding megaregulation and the future directions complex transnational governance may take.

Resetting the International Monetary (Non)System

José Antonio Ocampo,
Columbia University

One of the basic problems faced during international crises is the lack of adequate preventive mechanisms, as well as insufficient instruments to finance countries in crisis and to overcome their over-indebtedness. This volume provides an analysis of the global monetary system and proposes a comprehensive yet evolutionary reform of the system aimed at creating better monetary cooperation for the twenty-first century.

Prosperity For All

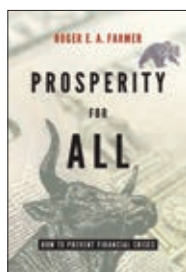

How To Prevent Financial Crises

Roger E. A. Farmer,
University of Warwick

In the aftermath of the 2008 financial crisis, economists around the world have advanced theories to explain the persistence of high unemployment and low growth rates. Written in clear, accessible language by prominent macroeconomic theorist Roger Farmer, Prosperity for All proposes a paradigm shift and policy changes that could successfully raise employment rates, keep inflation at bay, and stimulate growth.

Capitalism Beyond Mutuality?

Perspectives Integrating Philosophy and Social Science

Edited by
Subramanian Rangan,
INSEAD

Trust in business is declining because business has focused too much on performance and too little on progress. From climate change to unfair compensation and technology-related fears, our list of concerns is large and growing. This book explores how economic actors might evolve their paradigms, preferences, and practices.

The Community of Advantage

A Behavioural Economist's Defence of the Market

Robert Sugden,

Tax By Design

The Mirrlees Review

Edited by Institute for Fiscal Studies (IFS) and James Mirrlees, University of Cambridge; Institute for Fiscal Studies

- Written by leading academics and practitioners
- Comprehensive overview of thinking on tax system design
- Presents realistic recommendations for tax reform in the UK based on the findings of the Mirrlees Review

Based on the findings of a commission chaired by James Mirrlees, this volume presents a coherent picture of tax reform whose aim is to identify the characteristics of a good tax system for any open developed economy, assess the extent to which the UK tax system conforms to these ideals, and recommend how it might be reformed in that direction.

The Political Economy of Italy's Decline

Andrea Lorenzo Capussela

- A unique attempt to retrace the deeper causes of Italy's decline
- Uses institutional analysis of Italy's politico-economic problems to explore both the historical and economic causes of its downward trajectory
- Focuses on the relatively understudied transition phases between the open-access and limited-access social order

Italy is a country of recent decline and long-standing idiosyncratic traits—a rich society where the rule of law is weak and political accountability is low. This book draws on political economic literature and historical analysis to argue that a battle of ideas can ease the shift to a fairer and more efficient equilibrium.

Taxation

Philosophical Perspectives

Edited by Martin O'Neill, University of York, and Shepley Orr, University College London

This is the first book to give a collective treatment of philosophical issues relating to tax. Given that the tax system is central to the operation of states and to the ways in which states interact with individual citizens, more interdisciplinary attention to conceptual and normative issues relating to tax is urgently needed.

Paying for Pollution

Why a Carbon Tax is Good for America

Gilbert E. Metcalf,
Tufts University

Paying for Pollution incisively examines the very real costs-economic and social-of climate change and the challenges of concerted action to reduce future losses due to damages of higher temperatures and more extreme weather. Gilbert E. Metcalf argues that there is a convergence of social, economic, environmental, and political forces that provides an opening for a new approach to climate policy.

Bridging the Gaps

Linking Research to Public Debates and Policy Making on Migration and Integration

Edited by Martin Ruhs, European University Institute, Kristof Tamas, Migration Studies Delegation, and Joakim Palme, Uppsala University

What is the use of research in public debates and policy-making on immigration and integration? Why are there such large gaps between migration debates and migration realities? This book provides a unique set of testimonies and analyses of these questions by researchers and public policy experts.

Fiscal Therapy

Balancing Today's Needs with Tomorrow's Obligations

William G. Gale,
Brookings Institution

- Directed to a general audience interested in America's economic future
- Written by one of the leading centrist economists in the United States

Fiscal Therapy takes a critical look at how and why the U.S. has run up its debt so high in the last four decades, what other countries have done to dig themselves out of this level of red ink, and what needs to be done now if the U.S. is to avoid bankruptcy in the 2050s and beyond.
