Grand Challenges for Social Work and Society

Edited by Rowena Fong,
University of Texas - Austin,
James Lubben, Boston
College, and Richard P. Barth,
University of Maryland at Baltimore

- This book will present the authoritative account of the start of the Grand Challenges in Social Work national initiative, written by the lead research teams for each GC
- Provides a roadmap for the Grand Challenges, giving readers an overview of each of the dozen social issues, making a case for social work's unique position to address it, offering ideas for directions to take and ways to get involved
- Published in conjunction with the American Academy of Social Work and Social Welfare (AASWSW)

Grand Challenges for Social Work and Society is an edited book that captures the culmination of the work done on the Grand Challenges for Social Work Initiative (GCSWI) spearheaded by the American Academy of Social Work and Social Welfare (AASWSW). The GCSWI is a decade-long undertaking intended to address some of the world's most difficult and complex social problems, and this book presents the foundations of this endeavor as it will unfold.

NEW EDITION

Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals

A Skills-Based Workbook

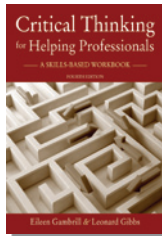

FOURTH EDITION

Eileen Gambrill, University of California - Berkeley, and Leonard Gibbs, University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire

Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals, Fourth Edition draws on research concerning decision making, judgment, problem solving, and expertise to create 37 hands-on exercises designed to enhance critical thinking values, knowledge, and skills which are integral to evidence-based practice. Attention is devoted to ignorance as well as knowledge – including ignorance promoted by special interests and ignorance that is self-inflicted through lack of knowledge about common biases and fallacies that impede informed decision making. The text is ideal for graduate as well as undergraduate courses in research and practice.

Someone To Talk To

Mario Luis Small, Harvard University

Someone To Talk To reveals the often counter-intuitive nature of social support, showing that Americans often take pains to avoid close friends and family – their ‘strong ties’ – when deciding on whom to rely. In contrast, they often confide in ‘weak ties,’ as the need for understanding or empathy trumps their fear of misplaced trust. Amid a growing wave of big data and large-scale network analysis, Mario L. Small returns to the basic questions of who we connect with, how, and why, upending decades of conventional wisdom on how we should think about and analyze social networks.

Night Call

Embracing Compassion and Hope in a Troubled World

Robert Wicks, Loyola Maryland University

- Lessons that are normally available only to helping and healing professionals, now offered to a wider audience
- Emphasis on the practice of ‘faithfulness’ as opposed to a focus on ‘success’ which demonstrates how to avoid unnecessary discouragement in reaching out to others
- Insight into how to face failure, which can determine whether one will burn out or actually have the opportunity to deepen and grow as an individual

Told through anecdotes, clinical observations, and pearls of wisdom, and drawing from broad literature in psychology, philosophy, religion, and spirituality, Wicks weaves together stories of pain, hope, healing, and strength to guide readers through the night. This text is the culmination of decades of experience of someone who trains the healers, and helps the helpers. Consequently, it affords readers the opportunity to learn the strategies that professional helpers, first responders, ministers, emergency workers, and soldiers have learned to use in dealing with loss, pain, trauma, and grief.

Change

What Really Leads to Lasting Personal Transformation

Jeffrey A. Kottler, California State University - Fullerton

- Includes true stories of powerful transformation from professional athletes, public figures, and regular people both in and outside of the context of psychotherapy
- While not simply another self-help book, the text gives readers a better appreciation for the difficulty of making change last
- Author is an accomplished therapist, longtime professor, and writer of several of the most popular counseling and psychotherapy textbooks

What causes human beings to make a significant change in their lives, a transformative shift in thinking and actions? This fundamental question has preoccupied philosophers, priests, politicians, authors, and scholars for centuries. Today, psychologists and therapists who sit with clients session after session have a unique window into the human psyche, watching the rhythms of change unfold in front of them every day, and yet the process remains a mystery. Research has shown that even in cases of unqualified success, the client and the therapist often have wildly different views on what made it work. Taking that as his starting point, Jeffrey Kottler leads the reader on an exploration of human behavior, seeking to find out what it is that really makes a difference that can lead to transformative and lasting change.

Healing Justice

Holistic Self-Care for Change Makers

Loretta Pyles, State University of New York at Albany

- Draws from the practices of yoga, mindfulness and Ayurveda to offer a holistic, mind-body, or contemplative approach to self-care
- Frames healing justice within the context of contemporary social movements including transformative social practice
- Offers specific skills, practices, and inquiries to help human service professionals and change makers to put the paradigm of healing justice into practice

Healing Justice offers a framework and practices for change makers who want to transform oppression, trauma, and burnout. Concerned with both the possibilities and limits of mindfulness and yoga for self-care, the book attends to the whole self of the practitioner, including the body, mind-heart, spirit, community, and natural world.

Critical Thinking and the Process of Evidence-Based Practice

Eileen Gambrill, University of California, Berkeley

- Integrates research and theory on judgment, decision making, and problem solving as they relate to the process of evidence-based practice
- Emphasizes the importance of attending to ignorance as well as knowledge
- Refers readers to useful additional resources

In Critical Thinking and the Process of Evidence-Based Practice, Eileen Gambrill provides a focused overview of the implementation of evidence-based practices necessary for competent and ethical practice. Providing readers with a description of how to effectively carry out the process of evidence-based practice, this book is designed to help practitioners and clients make informed decisions by drawing on research and theory concerning decision making and problem solving. Chapters are included on: argumentation; expertise; and fallacies and biases that hinder informed decisions, in addition to organizational and personal obstacles to enhancing the quality of services. The importance of attending to ignorance as well as knowledge is also emphasized.

Feeling Good by Doing Good

A Guide to Authentic Self-Esteem and Well-Being

Christopher J. Mruk
Bowling Green State University

Coming to the defense of self-esteem as a valuable and measurable component of good mental health, Feeling Good by Doing Good offers a new evidence-based approach to defining, understanding, and increasing what is known as 'authentic self-esteem.' Translating decades of research in the fields of self-esteem, humanistic psychology, positive psychology, and psychotherapy into everyday terms, Christopher Mruk traces the definition of self-esteem back to when it was first used to describe the value of 'doing that which is both just and right.' Seen this way, self-esteem is not just feeling good about oneself – rather, it comes from facing life's challenges in ways that demonstrate one's competence and worth as a person.

The Fiscalization of Social Policy

How Taxpayers Trumped Children in the Fight Against Child Poverty

Joshua T. McCabe, Wellesley College

The earned income tax credit (EITC) and child tax credit (CTC) are tax credits for low-income families that paradoxically exclude the poorest families. This book challenges the conventional wisdom on American exceptionalism and offers the first and only comparative analysis of the politics on these important anti-poverty tax credits.

A Place Called Home

The Social Dimensions of Homeownership

Kim R. Manturuk, Duke University, and Mark R. Quercia, both at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

- This is the first book to give a comprehensive portrait of the many and varied social benefits of homeownership
- Every chapter addresses the challenge of selection bias and every empirical chapter has been peer-reviewed. In research about homeownership, the decision of whether to rent or own is not controlled for
- The authors use the findings to try to extend the benefits traditionally associated with homeownership to renters

A Place Called Home explains that homeownership is associated with many positive and surprising non-financial outcomes, and also how and why this is so. The book ultimately argues that homeownership is an important social tool that can improve the lives of low- and moderate-income people.

Social Work Practice and Social Welfare Policy in the United States

A History

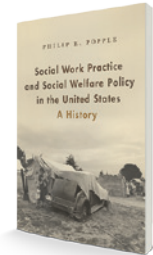

Philip R. Popple, University of Texas at Arlington

- The first new social work history written in over twenty years
- Identifies major challenges facing the social work profession
- Explores the development of social work practice theory and techniques, as well as the more traditional focus on social welfare policy

The first new social work history written in over twenty years, Social Work Practice and Social Welfare Policy in the United States identifies, from a historical perspective, major challenges facing the social work profession. Tapping into archival data, the text describes the evolution of social work practice theories and techniques, and discusses social welfare policy and social work practice from the usual 'top down' perspective of elites (policymakers, administrators, academics) while adding the 'bottom up' perspective of service recipients and social work practitioners.

The Investment State

Charting the Future of Social Policy

David Stoesz, Flinders University and Carnegie Mellon University-Australia

- Serves as a sequel to The Dynamic Welfare State (OUP, 2016) – which highlighted a theory of welfare state decline – by envisioning a new paradigm for social programs
- Outlines three strategies of social investment: Social Development Accounts, Community Credit Unions, and Refundable Volunteer Tax Credits
- Provides a template for future social policy, which can be adapted to cities, states, nations, and international trade agreements

This book proposes a new way of thinking about social programs, premised on social investment, which stands in contrast to a previous era in which social entitlements were regnant. It serves as a sequel to The Dynamic Welfare State (OUP, 2016), which addresses the challenges of the 21st-century information age.

Making Education Work for the Poor

The Potential of Children's Savings Accounts

William Elliott, and Melinda Lewis, both at University of Kansas

- Uses authors' personal stories to illustrate inequities in education system
- Features research conducted with a clear public purpose in mind, in order to increase the relevance and applicability of findings to public policy conversations
- Considers how research resonates with people's values and how the proposed policy intervention aligns with American ideals

Making Education Work for the Poor identifies wealth inequality as the gravest threat to the American education system. Today, wealth, rather than individuals' effort and ability, determines educational outcomes. This book calls for universal Opportunity Investment Accounts to be the cornerstone of the wealth-building agenda the nation needs to salvage the American Dream.

Youth Labor in Transition

Inequalities, Mobility, and Policies in Europe

Edited by Jacqueline O'Reilly, University of Sussex Business School, Janine Leschke, Copenhagen Business School, Renate Ortlieb, University of Graz, Martin Seeleib-Kaiser, Eberhard Karls Universität Tübingen, and Paola Villa, University of Trento

Exacerbated by the Great Recession, youth transitions to employment and adulthood have become increasingly protracted, precarious, and differentiated by gender, ethnicity, and socioeconomic status. Examining employment transitions affected by family and migration, Youth Labor in Transition argues for an integrated analysis of the sphere of economic production and social reproduction if policy intervention is to be effective.

Just Enough

Sufficiency as a Demand of Justice

Liam Shields, University of Manchester

Liam Shields systematically clarifies and defends the political philosophy of Sufficientarianism, which insists that securing enough of some things, such as food, healthcare and education, is a crucial demand of justice. By engaging in practical debates about critical issues such as child-rearing and global justice, the author sheds light on the potential implications of sufficientarianism on the social policies that affect our daily lives.

The New Activism

Gail Uckockis

- Details historical and social contexts of misogyny (e.g., rape culture)
- Combines academic rigor with 'real life' stories, shaping an engaging narrative style
- Features a stress on activism, especially successful examples from the past

Impassioned but practical, this book dives into the topic of misogyny and proposes strategies for effective action. Using a multi-generational approach, it traces the history of misogyny and considers its meaning today – what is new and what is old – and explores the current state of feminism as new aspects of misogyny continue to emerge in our society that impact girls and women worldwide.

Domestic Abuse, Child Custody, and Visitation

Winning in Family Court

Toby G. Kleinman, Adler & Kleinman Attorneys at Law, and Daniel Pollack, Wurzweiler School of Social Work

- Speaks to counterintuitive processes that are often fundamental to understand how family courts work when domestic abuse is present and custody is an issue
- Addresses the judicial fallacy that courts will automatically protect children where domestic violence is present

When domestic abuse and children are involved, divorce and custody can be the epitome of high stakes conflict where, often, the named perpetrator of a child abuses gains custody. This book helps laypeople, mental health professionals, and attorneys navigate the judicial process so that decisions are truly made in the best interest of children.

Traumatic Divorce and Separation

The Impact of Domestic Violence and Substance Abuse in Custody and Divorce

Lisa Fischel-Wolovick,
City University of New York

- Features discussion of domestic violence, substance abuse, and mental health problems during divorce
- Explores the traumatic impact of intimate partner violence
- Examines gender bias in the courts and need for systemic reforms, including model court movement

This book is an integration of the study of trauma, divorce, and separation impacted by domestic violence, substance abuse, and mental illness. While the original research on divorce took place at roughly the same time as the field of trauma, social scientists did not integrate an understanding of trauma into their understanding of domestic violence and divorce. During divorce, such families are impacted by a history of traumatic exposure to abuse and require court intervention that cannot be addressed by mediation or alternative dispute resolution. They require a trauma-informed interdisciplinary response. The text also discusses gender bias against women in the courts and the gender bias task force movement.

The Power of Positive Parenting

Transforming the Lives of Children, Parents, and Communities Using the Triple P System

Edited by Matthew R. Sanders, University of Queensland, and Trevor G. Mazzucchelli, Curtin University

The Power of Positive Parenting provides an in-depth description of 'Triple P,' one of the most extensively studied parenting programs in the world, backed by more than 30 years of ongoing research. Triple P has its origins in social learning theory and the principles of behavior, cognitive, and affective change, and its aim is to prevent severe behavioral, emotional, and developmental problems in children and adolescents by enhancing the knowledge, skills, and confidence of parents.

The Hidden Among the Hidden

African-American Elder Male Caregivers

Helen K. Black, University of Maryland - Baltimore County, John T. Groce, Widener University, and Charles E. Harmon, Mature Africans Learning from Each Other (M.A.L.E.)

- Covers a minimally researched area on African-American men as caregivers
- Features findings based on bottom-up research
- Takes a holistic view of the caregiver (i.e. does not consign him to a category while eliciting his opinions on matters regarding caregiving that are critical to him, giving voice to his narrative, and considering him the expert on his life and his caregiving)

What are the experiences of African-American elder male caregivers? Based on research with twelve African-American caregivers born in the first half of the 20th century, this book captures the complexity and poignancy of the caregiving pilgrimage, and roots men's caregiving narratives within the biographical and historical context of their lives.

Phallacies

Historical Intersections of Disability and Masculinity

Edited by Kathleen M. Brian,
Western Washington University,
and James W. Trent, Jr.,
Gordon College

- Addresses an under-explored topic that is applicable to the academic disciplines of history, gender studies, American studies, sociology, cultural studies, disability studies, social work, psychology, etc.
- Examines the intersections between masculinity and disability across the past 60 years
- Integrates material on several types of disabilities – psychiatric disabilities, blindness, physical disabilities, intellectual disability, and war-related disabilities

Phallacies: Historical Intersections of Disability and Masculinity is a collection of essays that focuses on disabled men who negotiate their masculinity as well as their disability. Essays include war-related disabilities, male hysteria, suicide clubs, mercy killings, and portraits of disabled men in literature and popular culture.

Disability-Affirmative Therapy

A Case Formulation Template for Clients with Disabilities

Rhoda Olkin, California School of Professional Psychology

Disability-Affirmative Therapy (D-AT) helps clinicians put the disability of a client into proper focus, without making one of the usual mistakes associated with cross-cultural therapy: overinflating the role of the disability, or underestimating its profound effects. D-AT provides a template for evaluation – nine areas to be discussed with the client – that allows understanding of the client's lifetime experiences with disability.

Headcase

LGBTQ Writers and Artists on Mental Health and Wellness

Edited by Stephanie Schroeder, and Teresa Theophano, Services and Advocacy for GLBT Elders (SAGE)

- Features voices from communities/ demographics that do not typically have access to platforms through which to tell their stories
- Includes an appendix of national, regional, and local resources
- Features special artwork that complements the text

Headcase illustrates the intersection of mental wellness, illness, and LGBT identity, as well as the lasting impact of historical views deeming that to be gay or lesbian equated mental illness. The collection of pieces contained therein offer personal views from both providers and clients, often one and the same, talking about their experiences. The text breaks new ground in documenting issues in LGBTQ mental health care with superbly written and powerfully rendered personal and political stories and images.

Social Work and Integrated Health Care

From Policy to Practice and Back

Edited by Victoria Stanhope, and Shulamith Lala Ashenberg Straussner, both at NYU Silver School of Social Work

- Uniquely addresses integrated health care from a social work perspective
- Demonstrates both how policy shapes practice and how practice outcomes influence policy
- Helps social workers meet the aim of sharing perspective and contributions from the field with the broad range of health care providers and stakeholders who are seeking to transform health care

This book provides a comprehensive view of the critical issues for social workers regarding the integration of primary care and behavioral health care. It discusses integrated health care settings, interprofessional practice, new roles for social workers, and describes key evidence-based practices such as screening, person-centered care planning, motivational interviewing and wellness self-management.

The Oxford Handbook of Stigma, Discrimination, and Health

Edited by Brenda Major, University of California, Santa Barbara, John F. Dovidio, Yale University, and Bruce G. Link, Columbia University

Stigma leads to poorer health. In The Oxford Handbook of Stigma, Discrimination, and Health, leading scholars identify stigma mechanisms that operate at multiple levels to erode the health of stigmatized individuals and, collectively, produce health disparities. This book provides unique insights concerning the link between stigma and health across various types of stigma and groups.

Dying at the Margins

Reflections on Justice and Healing for Inner-City Poor

David Wendell Moller,

Anne Arundel Medical Center

Dying at the Margins: Reflections on Justice and Healing for Inner-City Poor gives voice to the most vulnerable and disempowered population – the urban dying poor – and connects them to the voices of leaders in end-of-life-care. Chapters written by these experts in the field discuss the issues that challenge patients and their loved ones, as well as offering insights into how to improve the quality of their lives. Demystifying stereotypes that surround poverty, Moller illuminates how faith, remarkable optimism, and an unassailable spirit provide strength and courage to the dying poor.

Invisible Visits

Black Middle-Class Women in the American Healthcare System

Tina K. Sacks, University of California, Berkeley

- Examines how Black middle-class women use cultural capital skills, which are accrued largely through class status, to mitigate stereotype threats and racial and gender bias in healthcare settings
- Places the contemporary experience of the Black middle class in a historical context
- Tells the stories of African-American women in their own words

Invisible Visits analyzes why Black middle-class women continue to face inequities in securing fair, equitable, and high-quality healthcare. Unlike other works on health disparities, it integrates social science, public health, and the humanities to better understand why Black women do not receive a proper standard of care at the doctor.

Sanctuary Cities, Communities, and Organizations

A Nation at a Crossroads

Melvin Delgado,
Boston University

- Serves as the first serious, academic book to address the subject of sanctuary cities in the U.S.
- Provides a historical, current, and projected look into the future look at the topic of those who are undocumented in the U.S.
- Appeals to an array of audiences, from human service practitioners to the general public

This is the first serious, academic book to address the subject of sanctuary cities in the United States. The topic is of immense saliency in the socio-political discourse in the United States, with events breaking practically every week concerning the fate of those who are undocumented in this country (including people with DACA statuses). The text provides a comprehensive and up-to-date view of the national issue that promises to continue to stay in the public glare during 2018 and beyond.

Mapping and Monitoring Bullying and Violence

Building a Safe School Climate

Ron Avi Astor, University of Southern California, and Rami Benbenishty, Bar Ilan University

- Includes examples of how monitoring can be used, suggests ways to structure survey instruments, and displays examples of school maps so readers can envision maps of their own schools
- Provides the variety of questions education professionals should ask, free resources for reference, and issues they should consider when designing a survey for their student population
- Includes some diagrams as well as charts and tables that readers can use as examples of ways to display and communicate the data to educators, parents, students, and community members

This guide provides professionals charged with reducing bullying and making schools safer with practical solutions for creating and implementing monitoring systems that use multiple sources of data. Including examples of how monitoring works, the authors advocate for an ongoing cycle that involves collecting information from multiple audiences about what is taking place in and around schools. Mapping, which gives school leaders, students, and staff members a visual record of safe and unsafe areas on the campus, is described along with other methods of gathering, analyzing, and sharing feedback.

Innovation from Within

Redefining How Nonprofits Solve Problems

Stephanie Berzin, Boston College, and Humberto Camarena, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile

- Book focuses on drawing out the untapped ideas and innovations already happening within existing organizations
- Book focuses on drawing out the untapped ideas and innovations already happening within existing organizations
- Focused specifically on fostering change within existing nonprofit organizations, drawing on dozens of real-world case studies from the authors' research and experiences

We are in the middle of an explosion of activity in the nonprofit sector, with increased attention to social problems and unprecedented access to the tools necessary to launch a new start-up. But often overlooked is the capacity for change, innovation, and brilliance that can emerge within an established organization, and that is where Innovation from Within fills a needed gap, providing a framework to help organizations to empower employees and amplify the impact of their work.

Transformational Leadership for the Helping Professions

Engaging Head, Heart, and Soul

Jean F. East, University of Denver

Transformational Leadership for the Helping Professions presents a unique framework of leadership as the integration of head, heart, and soul. The book combines both classic and current theories on leadership, with a philosophical lens about its meaning and practice in human services settings. Social workers, nurses, teachers, public health workers, and community leaders will find this text to be a useful guide in strengthening their consideration of leadership theory while they practice in day-to-day work.

What You Don't Know about Leadership, but Probably Should

Applications to Daily Life

Jeffrey A. Kottler, California State University - Fullerton

- Appeals to all audiences, professional and general alike
- Applies strategies from group therapy and systemic intervention models to the realities that people face every day
- Integrates the latest research, theory, concepts, and skills into a model that applies these ideas to every aspect of daily life

This book explores ways that leadership skills and interventions can operate throughout daily life. Applications from group therapy and systemic intervention models are applied to the realities that people face every day — inspiring others, facilitating meetings, running social events, guiding conversations, and empowering others.

Smart Decarceration

Achieving Criminal Justice Transformation in the 21st Century

Edited by Matthew Epperson, University of Chicago, and Carrie Pettus-Davis, Washington University St. Louis

- Timeliness in the context of the United States reaching a saturation point with mass incarceration, coupled with increased political and moral will to propel an era of decarceration
- Features representativeness of a broad range of perspectives
- Proposes an array of ideas through the entire criminal justice system

Smart Decarceration is a forward-thinking, practical volume that provides concrete strategies for an era of decarceration. This timely work consists of chapters written from multiple perspectives and disciplines including scholars, practitioners, and persons with incarceration histories. The text grapples with tough questions and builds a foundation for the decarceration field.

Serving the Stigmatized

Working within the Incarcerated Environment

Edited by Wesley T. Church, II, Louisiana State University, and David W. Springer, The University of Texas at Austin

- First comprehensive volume devoted exclusively to examining the scope of the problems, risks, and evidence-based institutional and community-based interventions of populations within the criminal justice system
- Features the contributions of over 30 prominent scholars, each with extensive knowledge and expertise in a specific area of the criminal justice system
- Provides a comprehensive discussion of the critical issues, public policies, and intervention strategies and programs that are effective in serving distinct criminal justice populations

Serving the Stigmatized is the first book of its kind that explores best practices when dealing with a specific prison population while under some form of institutional control. If the established goal of a correctional facility is to 'rehabilitate,' then it is imperative that the rehabilitation is effective and does not simply serve as a political buzz word. The timing of releasing this book coincides with a real movement in the United States, supported by both conservative and liberal advocates and foundations, to decrease the size of the prison population by returning more offenders to their communities. The text examines 14 specific populations and how to effectively treat them in order to better serve them and our communities.

Structural Interventions for HIV Prevention

Optimizing Strategies for Reducing New Infections and Improving Care

Edited by Richard A. Crosby, University of Kentucky, and Ralph J. DiClemente, New York University

Structural interventions – changes to environment aimed at influencing health behaviors – are the most universal and cost-effective tool in preventing new incidences of HIV.

They are not easy to get right, however. Structural Interventions for HIV Prevention offers an authoritative reference for both understanding these programs and instituting them to greatest effect. Whether through changes to policy, environment, social/community norms, or a combination of each, this volume offers actionable and attainable blueprints to creating and evaluating programs in any setting or country. It is an essential resource for researchers and practitioners in the continuing fights against HIV.

Social Work Practice with the LGBTQ Community

The Intersection of History, Health, Mental Health, and Policy Factors

Edited by Michael P. Dentato, Loyola University Chicago

- Weaves together empirical and conceptual content, written by LGBTQ scholars, educators, students, and allies
- Provides strong integration of content related to affirming models and methods of practice
- Addresses issues of intersectionality with practice, urban and rural LGBTQ communities, and micro, mezzo, and macro perspectives

This text broadly examines many important aspects of effective and affirming practice methods with the LGBTQ community, along with considering health, mental health, history, and policy factors. The content was written by social work scholars, educators, practitioners and students to reach across professions (e.g., social work, health, mental health) and across audiences (e.g., students, faculty, researchers, and practitioners).

- Shares case examples from the field to illustrate the real-life applications and challenges of critical multiculturalism
- Includes discussion questions in each chapter to support critical self-reflection with readers' own experiences of privilege and oppression
- Examines institutional bias and systemic structures that establish privilege and marginalization of identity groups

By providing a balance between self-reflection and knowledge building, this book guides the examination of social identities, biases, mechanisms of oppression, and impact of privilege. Learning is globally situated with a lens on localized identity, and positionality at the intersections of multiple identities is explored.
